

PARIS PRAISE OF ROOSEVELT.

FOR "RIGHTIOUS TEMERITY" IN ATTACKING HEARST.

"Eclair" Approves His "Violent Wrenching of Precedent" in Entering New York Campaign—Wishes France Had Such a President to Meet Socialist Crisis.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.
PARIS, Nov. 3.—America has already learned that England is taking greater interest in the American election than in any former year and that the newspapers are devoting greater space to endeavors to keep their readers informed of the progress of the campaign and also to enlighten them upon the questions at issue and the personal status of the principal candidates. The same is true, though perhaps in a lesser degree, of France.

This morning the Eclair devoted its leading editorial to the consideration of what it freely called the extraordinary intervention of President Roosevelt in a State political contest. This evening the Journal des Debats has a column American communication on the general issues represented in next Tuesday's battle. Some Paris newspapers are making special preparations in an endeavor to procure early enough for publication on Wednesday morning accurate results of the voting, notwithstanding the difficulties presented by the difference in time.

One editor who is widely known last evening referred to his interest in what he called the two H's. When asked to explain he said, "Heaven and hell." He was speaking of the New York campaign. His faith was so weak and his fear so great that he and he expected hell, but he had not abandoned hope. He is familiar with American affairs.

The Eclair's article is based on Secretary Root's speech delivered on the authority of President Roosevelt. It praises President Roosevelt's "righteous temerity" in going the unprecedented and interesting himself directly in the campaign, relying upon his tremendous popularity to influence the people in a time he really believes dangerous. The Eclair says this last manifestation of his independence of spirit and his belief in the reliance of the people upon his just intentions and sound judgment will rank as one of his most violent wrenching of precedent, but it approves his action and expresses the wish that France had such a President in the face of the Socialist menace which confronts this country.

The Eclair says that "disdaining any reserve of prudence President Roosevelt does not hesitate to attack personally a candidate who is five hundred times a millionaire, namely, Hearst, who has sworn to carry off the vote by corruption, by lawless compromises and by despicable agents." It adds: "Demagogues have in succession ruined all countries which have given themselves to their vices. More than one lucky man in France who has come to the front will recognize himself in the portrait drawn by Secretary Root, but we have not the same good fortune to have a protest hurled from the heights of the United States Presidency. There is hope for a country which keeps at the summit such men. The force of the check the President is running the risk of receiving is the measure of the gravity of the ill he is seeking to cure."

TO WIPE OUT CUBAN DISORDER.

Gov. Magoon Orders Patrol of the Rural Guards Extended.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.
HAVANA, Nov. 3.—The following was given out at the palace tonight:
"Gov. Magoon announces that at a conference held in the Governor's office this morning between Gen. Bell, Chief of Staff; Gen. Rodriguez, chief of the Rural Guards; Consul-General Steinhardt and Major Slocum it was determined that the Rural Guards should increase and extend their patrol of the country outside of the towns; that horse stealing must be prevented and persons guilty of the offense arrested and punished in accordance with the requirements of the law; also that any one appearing in public with arms without a license for carrying the same should be disarmed and the bands of disorderly persons infesting the rural districts should be dispersed."

It is the belief of the Provisional Government and all persons desiring the reign of law and order in Cuba that the good men engaged in the recent uprising have complied with the agreement to disband and that man, whatever their political affiliations, who from now on assemble in bands and are found going about the country must be considered as being actuated by improper and illegal motives and be dealt with accordingly."

Capt. Thorpe of the United States Marine Corps at Cienfuegos, who had received reports of trouble at Ojo de Agua, made an investigation and to-day sends word that all is quiet in that district.

The transport Sumner was fumigated to-day before she sailed because of a suspected case of yellow fever aboard. The suspect was an American officer who was sent to the hospital.

Gov. Magoon has committed the sentence of ninety days imprisonment of Martinez, who was found guilty of running an illegal traffic, to a fine of $1 a day for each day of the sentence which he has not served.

Private Wagner of the Fourteenth battery field artillery, is to be tried by court-martial for having written a criticism in verse of the food given to the soldiers at Camp Columbia. The verse was published in the Daily Telegraph.

The Liberals are waiting until after the elections in the United States before making further demands on Gov. Magoon for more forces. Among the demands to be made is one that Gen. Pino Guerra, the leading revolutionary commander, be made chief of the Rural Guard.

On the other hand it is stated that the Moderates, or those who are dissatisfied with Gov. Magoon, are considering the question of making an attempt to overthrow his administration by starting an uprising in Matanzas and Santiago.

DIVIDING FORCES OF REVOLT.

Russian Premier's Main Attack Made on the Maximalists.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 3.—Premier Stolypin's vigorous policy causes considerable confusion in the scattered ranks of the revolutionaries. His action in drawing a wide distinction between the Maximalist wing of the Socialist revolutionaries and the Workmen's Socialist revolutionaries drives a wedge into the mass which favors an immediate revolution by physical force.

Among the eight persons hanged for the raid on the treasury van were some who it is not supposed actually hit anybody, but their membership in the Maximalist organization which conducted the raid and their presence on the spot with revolvers was decided to be sufficient ground for their immediate execution.

The seizures made at the apartments of the Terrorist Rosenberg show that the Maximalists, whose title may be regarded as being derived from the policy of inflicting the maximum wreckage upon the Government, are organized units of ten. Each ten has a chief who cooperates with ten other chiefs of ten. The chief of these latter is thus a centurion with one hundred disciplined followers, although he personally knows only their ten sectional chiefs.

This arrangement enables raids to be planned by three or four people in a back room where they are beyond suspicion by the police and the plots are actually carried out by perhaps forty of their followers. Rosenberg was regarded as a centurion of the Maximalist party, as the seizure of his horses, carriage and collection of uniforms, some of which were those worn by civil dignitaries when attending receptions showed that he had ample material for conducting revolutionary robberies and assassinations on the highest scale.

In striking contrast to the fate of the Maximalists the Government has treated the leaders of the revolutionary workmen's council with the utmost moderation. The prosecutor announced that he did not ask for sentences involving any kind of convict labor. The result was that fifteen leaders were sent to reside within the boundaries of some remote province accompanied by their families. A couple of the other accused men must sit idly in the Petropavlovsk fortress for a few months, like an editor who has disclosed some census regulation, and the remaining dozen were set free to return to their St. Petersburg comrades.

Yet these St. Petersburg comrades approve absolutely the Maximalists' propaganda. They realize that their own inability this year to strike an effective blow while Premier Stolypin orders the unflinching extermination of the Maximalists may convert the latter back into mere nihilist fanatics.

ARMY NURSES MAY NOT DANCE.

British Secretary for War Decides an Important Question.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—In the intervals of the hard task of reforming the British army Secretary for War Haldane had to settle the question whether the nurses at the Netley Military Hospital may go to dances. The champion of the nurses in the House of Commons asked why military nurses should be on a different footing from officers in regard to amusement.

After due thought and consideration Minister Haldane came to the conclusion that occasional attendance at operas, theatres and concerts is not incompatible with the due performance of the duties of the nurses, but the late hours involved in balls and dances incapacitated them from giving the proper attention to their patients.

The day after he announced this conclusion, in reply to a further question, Mr. Haldane confessed that the "weight of authority of an experienced matron whom he had consulted had prevailed over his natural instincts."

SUIT OVER FAMOUS VILLA DESTROYED.

Heir of Cardinal Hohenlohe Wants $64,000 From Archbishop Francis Ferdinand.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

ROME, Nov. 3.—The future Emperor of Austria, Archduke Francis Ferdinand of Austria, has been cited to appear in the Roman law courts on December 12 in connection with the famous Villa d'Este at Tivoli, built in the middle of the sixteenth century by Cardinal d'Este, the son of Lucrezia Borgia. During the succeeding centuries the splendid villa was allowed to fall into partial ruin.

In 1859 Cardinal Hohenlohe, struck by its beauty and magnificence, obtained permission from the then owner, the last Duke of Modena, to use the villa as long as he lived on condition that he undertook to pay the expense of maintaining and repairing it. This cost the Cardinal about $13,000, and when the Duke of Modena tried to sell the estate it was agreed that a third of the price should go to the Cardinal to reimburse him for his expenditures. The villa, however, was not sold. The Cardinal is dead and his heir is suing the Archduke, who has inherited the villa, for the sum of $12,800.

More Guards Needed at the Louvre.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The robbery of an Egyptian statue from the Louvre and its concealment for ten days has led to a demand for better guarding of the national museum treasures. It is pointed out that although the statue was of small value it was taken from a poor girl, a young girl, and the Egyptian statue is a valuable relic of the Egyptian civilization. It is pointed out that the British galleries are always guarded by numerous policemen, thus insuring greater safety.

The Weather.

An extensive high area covered the country yesterday from the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic coast. The pressure was comparatively low on the north Atlantic coast, but increasing and fair weather prevailed in all the Atlantic and Gulf States, except Florida, where there was rain, with excessive falls at Key West.

In the Lake regions and northwestern valleys and south to Texas conditions were cloudy, rain falling in several districts.

A storm moving inland over Washington was causing rain in the Pacific Coast States. It was warmer from the upper Lakes, southwest to Texas, and in the north, where there was rain, with excessive falls at Key West.

Freezing temperatures occurred at points in the Rocky Mountains from Colorado northwest and in northern portions of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana.

In this city the day was fair and warmer; wind fresh northwest; average humidity, 38 per cent; barometer, corrected to sea level, 30.18 A. M., 30.20 P. M., 30.25.

The temperature yesterday, as recorded by the official thermometer, is shown in the annexed table:

LONDON TURNS LIBERALS OUT.

Borough Elections Show Signs of Unionist Awakening.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The sweeping nature of the Moderate victory in the London borough elections is in itself sufficient to arouse general interest even here in that very neglected quantity—municipal politics; but the elections which have just closed are of peculiar importance inasmuch as the clearest signs of a Unionist awakening in many parts of the country.

To appreciate the extent of the sweeping change in London a few figures will be necessary. Three years ago, with a Unionist Government in power and with London represented in the House of Commons almost entirely by Unionists, out of twenty-eight London boroughs seventeen returned Progressives or Liberals (for the elections run on party lines) majorities, and in most cases the majorities were decisive or overwhelming. To-day with the Liberal party newly arrived in power in unprecedented strength, out of London's twenty-eight boroughs only two certainly and one doubtfully remain to the Liberals. In a few others they form a respectable minority; in most they have practically ceased to exist.

In the borough elections in the provinces there were similar results. In Lancashire the Conservative Catholic vote, with the assistance of many Liberal churches, swept the polls on the education question. In Liverpool, Blackburn and nearly all the Lancashire towns there were Union gains. In busy towns far separated, such as Bradford, Nottingham, Birmingham and Davenport, the Unionists claimed victories.

The Labor candidates everywhere suffered a decided setback, and it seems certain that in many places the Liberals have combined with the Unionists against the Labor Socialist candidates. London's protest, indeed, seems certainly to have been made against what the Municipal Reformers, as the Unionist-Moderates now style themselves, call municipal socialism or communism. The devotees of this principle have ruled London for three years, spending the taxpayers' money with prodigal extravagance, while their fellows in Parliament have shown corresponding parsimony in matters of imperial expenditures.

The Unionists are now loudly expressing the hope that the House of Lords will keep a stiff upper lip over the education bill, and in the face of the declaration of Chancellor of the Exchequer Asquith last night that the Government would remain firm on the education bill, force the Government either to drop the bill or appeal to the country.

GALWAY, Nov. 3.—The Galway city election to-day to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Charles R. Devlin (Nationalist) resulted in the election of Stephen Gwynne (Nationalist). The poll was: Gwynne, 983; Capt. Shaw Taylor (Independent), 559.

ITALY AND AUSTRIA CLOSER.

New Agreement to Cultivate More Cordial Relations.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

ROME, Nov. 3.—In a semi-official note, published to-day, it is said that a friendly exchange of views between the Austrian and Italian Foreign Ministers resulted in a decision to act in full accord, their efforts to be devoted to rendering the relations of the two Governments closer and more cordial.

A similar note was published in Vienna to-day.

France to Stay in Hague Conference.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Among the provisions of the Government programme to be announced in the Chamber of Deputies on Monday is one providing for the reappointment of the French commissioners to the Hague conference with a renewal of their powers for six years.

AUSTRIAN OFFICERS REJOICE.

Army Regulations as to Dress Off Duty Are Relaxed.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—Vienna despatches describe the rejoicing among young officers over a recent army order which breaks down several old, irksome dress regulations. Heretofore it has always been amusing to the spectators but vexatious to the victims to watch on the Prater Corso or on the racetrack the severely critical glances of superior officers at the height of the collar, the color of the overalls and the quality of the boots and gloves of the junior officers.

By the new order the height of the collar remains the same, and any obnoxious long necked Lieutenant who exceeds the limit will still be guilty of an offence against the regulations. On the other hand the greatest liberality is shown in regard to footwear. Instead of the inexorable plain black blucher an officer may now wear shoes as brilliant as varnish can make them and easy as lace will allow. Leggings and spats are no longer tabooed, and even galoshes are permitted in bad weather.

In gloves there is an equally welcome innovation. Hitherto the most fastidious dandy only knew glove gloves by seeing them in shop windows or on the hands of civilians, being obliged himself to wear white chamois leather, which seldom looked clean and never smart. The original idea was probably to save the poorer youngsters money by specifying gloves of a grayish shade of white. Kid gloves of various kinds may now be worn and officers may also wear a pince-nez instead of a monocle. They may use ordinary winter coats of the usual sporting pattern and great coats and jackets lined with fur.

At the moment of this relaxation in the dress regulations of Austrian officers British officers have been pulled up for non-observance of one of the king's regulations, which forbids officers to shave the upper lip. Gen. Lord Grenfell has called the attention of several officers to violations of this regulation.

LONGEVITY IN THE BALKANS.

Those Disturbed States Hold the Record for Centenarians.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A writer in an afternoon paper asks experts in sanitation to explain why longevity in Europe reaches the highest point in countries which pay the least attention to hygiene. The highest percentage of centenarians is found, not in Great Britain, Germany or Switzerland, but in the Balkan States. Bulgaria leads with a total of 3,800, out of a population of 3,000,000. Rumania and Serbia have 1,667 each, while Greece has 1,500. Austria has 213, Great Britain 146, Germany 55 and Switzerland none.

Taking account of the past and present history of the Balkan territory, one can hardly attribute the longevity of the inhabitants to the placid life they lead.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—John Ford, first secretary of the British Embassy at Rome, and May, daughter of Mrs. William George Cavendish-Bentinck, formerly Miss Livingston of New York, were married in the Chapel Royal, St. James's Palace, to-day in the presence of the members of the diplomatic corps and of many of the nobility. Ambassador Whitehall Reid and a number of other Americans were in attendance. Mr. Ford was at one time attached to the British Legation at Washington.

The bride's parents are personal friends of the King. Hence the privilege of having the marriage celebrated in the exclusive Chapel Royal.

HAVING A LOOK IN LONDON.

Crowd Watching Woman Getting Her Shoes Polished Blocks Traffic.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—A good example of how anything that is slightly removed from the normal will suffice to draw a London crowd occurred on Fleet Street yesterday. At a busy hour of the day a crowd began to collect, the sidewalk was soon completely blocked and the people overflowed into the roadway. The police had to interfere vigorously to prevent traffic from being completely blocked in this main artery which connects the city with the West End.

The cause of the strange gathering was simply a woman having her shoes polished. It should be added that there was nothing in the slightest degree uncommon in the appearance of the woman.
